About

Throughout my career as a client software developer, I have gained expert knowledge of the SW development lifecycle, including design, coding, testing, debugging, deployment and maintenance. With a focus on robust system architectures and automation of work processes, my job is to create fully-tested, sustainable and client-oriented applications. I am always keen to share my vast experience by writing blog posts, and I constantly stay abreast of the latest work by other professionals to ensure my work continues improving to achieve the best possible quality.
